Victory Football Banquet Held Last Night At College

Awards Presented And Team Lauded For Fine Record

Around 150 persons attended the annual football banquet of the Murray Thoroughbreds at Wells Hall last night.

The guest speaker of the evening was Max Hurt, executive secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, who said that the "people of Murray are proud of this year's team." He then gave a history of football from its beginning in England to the present time. A lighter vein was added by comic definitions of football terms.

The program opened with a few words of greeting said that the college "will continue to grow athletically and academically."

Two vocal selections were presented by Clarence Walker, accompanied by Bobby White. Walker also led the assemblage in group singing.

Athletics director Roy Stewart presented the Outstanding Blocker Award, a gold football, to Bill McClure. He also introduced the all-KIAC members of the team, Tommy Walker, John Hackney, and Jack Wyatt.

Couch Jim Moore introduced the six senior members of the squad and said that the entire squad this year had exhibited the finest spirit he had ever witnessed on the gridiron.

Ken Evelt was named captain for 1948, with Billy Joe Saunders alternate. Jack Wyatt, the 1947 captain, was also introduced.

The toastmaster presented Miss Ouida Lester, the football queen for this season. Her attendants were Miss Mary Jane Kennedy and Miss Martha Batsel.

Special guests were Mr. and Mrs. Hollis C. Franklin, chairman of the Board of Regents of the college, congratulated the team for capturing the KIAC pennant this year.

Members of the planning committee for the banquet were Miss Tenny Breckenridge, chairman, Miss Ruth Ashmore, Mrs. Mary W. Brown, Mrs. Leone Utterback, Miss Pat Twiss, Miss Clara M. Eagle, LeRoy Jessup, Richard Stillman.

Miss Lydia Wehling, dietitian of the college and members of her staff were in charge of foods and table service.

The program ended with the entire group singing "Old Gray Mare."

Walter Trevathan is an operative patient at the Baptist Hospital in Memphis.

CONTRIBUTIONS IN ORDER

The Elm Grove Baptist Church will hold a love offering Sunday morning for Mr. and Mrs. Bub Maupin whose home on East highway and all their household possessions were completely destroyed by fire Monday noon.

Mr. and Mrs. Maupin were both away from home when the fire broke out, so not even personal belongings were saved. Maupin, a World War I veteran, had been farming a few acres of land for their living.

The loss incurred on the dwelling alone was estimated at $8,000. It was revealed that the property was insured for only $1500.

Rev. Leslie Gilbert, pastor of the Elm Grove Church, will accept contributions for the unfortunate couple at his home at 300 South Fifth street.

Male Lead In H.S. Production Has Pneumonia

Due to a sudden attack of pneumonia, William McElrath will be unable to play the role of Otis Skinner in the production "Our Hearts were Young and Gay" which is being offered at the High School auditorium tonight.

Ronald Churchill, Jr., who was assistant director of the production, has been chosen to play the role.

The lead roles are shared by Ruby Atkins, playing the part of Cornelia Skinner, and Joann Parker portraying the role of Emily Kimbrough.

This is expected to be one of the best productions ever to be presented by Murray High School. Performances will be given Thursday and Friday evening with the curtain going up at 8:15 o'clock.

The play is a comedy that was adopted from the best selling novel by Miss Skinner and Miss Kimbrough.

Harry Hansen is the director and the stage manager is John Downs. Music will be furnished by the Murray High School theatre orchestra under the direction of Miss Mary Elizabeth Roberts.

The technical staff is composed of the following students:

Scenery: Pat Elkins, Billy Crago, Billy Joe Crass, Bill Rowlett, William Hopkins.

LATE BULLETINS

Can't Be Stopped

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11 (UP)—Rep. Fred A. Hartley, R. N. J., said today there is nothing in the Taft-Hartley Act to prevent three AFL unions from staging a pre-Christmas strike against Western Union Telegraph Company.

"All we can do is to admit we didn't go far enough when we wrote the act," said Hartley, co-author of the new labor law. "We should have gone on and done the complete job I wanted to do when the bill was before Congress."

Hartley said the three unions now taking a strike vote have complied with all the provisions of the act. He said no action can be taken against them "unless somebody can rule that the strike would impair public health and safety."

Chickens Not Cooperating

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11 (UP)—The nation's chickens are paying little attention to the government's campaign for eggless days, it appeared today.

The Agriculture Department reported that total egg production last month set a new record high for November. Farm flocks, averaging 8.7 eggs per layer, produced 3,291,000,000 eggs.

Exchange Uneven

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11 (UP)—State Department records disclosed today that in the year ended June 30, the Soviet Union allowed only one American to enter its borders for every 88 Russians granted visas to this country.

The records showed that 4,427 Russians were given U. S. visas during that time, while only about 50 Americans were permitted to enter the Soviet Union.

Bride Of Last Month

Miss Patricia Parker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eubert Parker, who was married to John Elwyn Prothro at Tyler, Texas, November 30.

Lights Step Up Egg Production

Mrs. W.R. Moreland of Trimble county last year used electric lights in her poultry house for the first time and found they paid well. Starting in the fall of 1946 with a flock of 146 White Rock hens, she had a total income of $1,353.45, not including the poultry and eggs used at home. For the 12-month period, her flock averaged 136 hens, and laid an average of 204.9 eggs per hen.

Mrs. Moreland told Farm Agent J.G. Dye that she bought her chicks from a hatchery in April. They were well fed during the summer, and then were put into a dry, well-ventilated laying house in the fall. During the four winter months when eggs were highest in price, her flock averaged 68 eggs per hen.

Expert Says Manure Worth $350 per Farm

Tests made by the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station indicate that farm manure is worth $3 to $5 a ton in increasing crop production. W. G. Survant, soils man at the station, says it is worth an average of $350 a farm.

"This means," he said, "that farmers could increase their incomes an average of $350 a year if they would save every bit of manure and spread it on the soil." The best practice is to spread the manure daily as it accumulates. Since this usually cannot be done, it should be left in the stalls or barns or stored under cover where rain cannot destroy much of its fertility value.

Soil Tests Show Fertilizer Needs

Testing the soil for the need of lime and fertilizer is advised by the Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington. Most county agents are prepared to make the tests, or samples of soil can be sent to the experiment station. The tests show the degree of soil acidity and the content of phosphorus and potassium.

County agents should be consulted before soil samples are taken. A golden boll weevil.

The inscription at the base reads: "In profound appreciation of the boll weevil, and what it has done as the herald of prosperity, this monument was erected by the citizens of Enterprise, Coffee County, Alabama."

The Citizens Food Committee Suggest:

A "PEACE PLATE" FOR TODAY

Save Wheat! Save Meat! Save the Peace!

THURSDAY PEACE PLATE

For a dish that combines thrift with good eating—and good conservation, too—the Consumer Service Section of the Citizens Food Committee suggests a Frankfurter-Green Bean Casserole for today's Peace Plate. One secret of its success is its use of cheese, which not only adds tangy flavor but provides additional protein of highest quality. For color and texture contrast, serve with this casserole baked potatoes, mashed rutabagas or yellow turnips, and shredded lettuce salad. For dessert, try Prune and Date Betty, made with cereal flakes instead of the usual bread crumbs.

FRANKFURTER-GREEN BEAN CASSEROLE

1 pound frankfurters, sliced 1/4 inch thick
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons drippings
2 cups milk (or liquid from canned beans)
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce (optional)
1/2 cup grated cheese
2 cups cooked or canned green beans

Brown the sliced frankfurters, remove to casserole. Stir flour into drippings, add milk and salt and cook until thickened. Add Worcestershire sauce, cheese and green beans. Combine with frankfurters in casserole. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) for 40 minutes. 6 to 8 servings.

PRUNE AND DATE BETTY

2 1/2 cups cereal flakes
1/4 cup melted butter or fortified margarine
2 cups sliced, pitted, cooked prunes
1 cup sliced, pitted dates
1/2 cup molasses
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
3/4 cup juice from prunes

Mix cereal flakes with butter, tossing lightly with a fork. Use 1/2 of them to cover the bottom of a greased casserole. Combine fruits, molasses, and spices. Turn half into the cereal flakes. Add another layer of cereal flakes then remaining fruit. Mix lemon rind with prune juice and pour over fruit. Top casserole with remaining cereal flakes and bake in moderate oven (350° F.) until flakes are browned and mixture is heated through, 30-40 minutes. Serve with thin cream if desired. 6 servings.

Food Tips: Be sure to have one or more servings of citrus fruits, tomatoes, or raw-cabbage daily. They're the high Vitamin C foods so necessary to good health.

If you've about a cup of any cooked meat left over, like tongue, ham or chicken, use it in making scalloped potatoes. And for extra flavor, add 1 tablespoon dairy-chopped onion.

Alabamans Observe 28th Anniversary Of Monument to A Boll Weevil

ENTERPRISE, Ala., Dec. 11.—(U.P.)—Robert Burns wrote a poem, "To A Louse." But Coffee County, Ala., went even further. It erected a monument to a boll weevil.

Enterprise citizens today observe the 28th anniversary of the statue to Mr. B. Weevil, formerly one of the country's best-known residents.

And today, bulging barrels and packed pantries in this rich agricultural area, might also be accepted as tributes to the dark destroyer, which drove farmers to diversified farming—and prosperity.

County Agent J. R. Speed said lack of rain had hurt crops some, but that there was a bounty of everything needed. He said that in addition to good food harvests, the hog crop was excellent. And added that dairy farming was playing an increasingly important part in Coffee county's agriculture industry.

Cotton was king here until 1915. Then came the boll weevil invasion. Lush, showy fields were left stripped black and barren. The average yield of almost 35,000 bales dropped 40 per cent. Farmers faced disaster.

But they were determined. The next year they braced for the invasion. They planted huge crops. They brought in great supplies of calcium arsenate, and other poisons. But still a third of the crop was ruined.

So diversified farming, advocated by State extension workers, county agents, and U. S. Department of Agriculture representatives, was given a trial.

Acres that had been dedicated only to cotton were given to corn, potatoes, cane, hay, and peanuts. These crops responded to the rich Coffee county soil as bountifully as had cotton.

By 1917, Coffee county was the peanut center of the world. That year, more than 1,000,000 bushels of goobers went to market. The record still stands. Coffee county is used by the Government as a yardstick for peanut production. This year, it ranks third nationally.

Crop rotation, soil conservation, and other practices of land preservation, are in constant effect here.

On December 11, 1919, Merchant R. O. Fleming suggested the monument to the boll weevil. He felt that prosperity, which had come to the county, was due in a great measure to the weevil.

Today, the only monument in the world honoring a bug stands on the town square, erected by popular subscription.

Today, on Enterprise's annual second "Thanksgiving Day," many citizens will probably stop by the 20 foot statue, that of a woman holding high a plaque: Upon which

A.A.U.W. Hears Miss Clara Eagle Speak On Art Development

The A.A.U.W. met Tuesday evening in the studio of the Fine Arts Building on the College campus. Following an extended business meeting the secretary of the International Relations Club reported that through efforts of members, ninety-five pounds in Friendship packages have been obtained to be sent to England, France, Italy, and Belgium.

This was followed by a program under the direction of Miss Clara Eagle, chairman of the College Arts Club, who gave a speech showing the development of the primitive arts to the present day.

Mrs. Mary Edith McCall Hall outlined the objectives of the College Art Department.

Those attending were taken on a tour and were able to see students doing work in brush stencil work, ceramics, silk screen work, and painting.

A special exhibit on display was the work of Mrs. James Moore.

BY MARGARETTA BRUCKER

Through a chance encounter, Michele (Mickey) Ryan, rich Detroit society girl, meets Peter Standish, poor young lawyer.

He thinks she's a fortune hunter and when he says he hates the rich, she dares not tell him who she is, saying instead that her name is Mickey Brooks. They are strongly attracted to each other.

Mickey who lives with her wealthy Aunt Henrietta, has been maneuvered by her aunt into an engagement to William Wayne, polo-playing idler, but she does not love him. On the evening after her encounter with Peter she starts when William brings her to dinner. She avoids being found out by remaining in her room. Meanwhile, Peter antagonizes her aunt with his socialistic views. When Mickey meets him again he proposes, but then says ruefully that he hasn't enough money to marry.

She determines to break her engagement but her aunt indignantly objects. Then she chances to see Peter with another girl—a shabby, cheap-looking person. For a while, she's upset but when she sees him again, her trust in him is restored. Meanwhile her friend, Rosamond Wilson, an interior decorator, has asked her to make public appearances at a department store as an advertising stunt, but Mickey fears Peter might see her there and learn her identity.

CHAPTER XII

SHORTLY after Mickey reached home, Rosamond phoned her to ask whether she had reached a decision about the job Rosamond had offered her. Mickey said no—that she was still thinking it over.

At dinner, Aunt Henrietta asked, "Did I hear you talking to Rosamond on the phone?"

"Yes," said Mickey. "I refused to allow her to tell her story. I ordered her off the place. Very evident why she came—money!"

"Money! But why come to me? The blood drained from Mickey's face. The girl must be the one she had seen with Peter. But why had he sent her here? Had he known all the time that she, Mickey, was Mickey Ryan, and was he taking advantage of her infatuation for him by sending this girl to demand money of her on the strength of some hard-luck story? Oh, no, he couldn't be so contemptible!"

"I don't believe you," she said hotly. "I don't believe Peter sent her."

"Maybe you'll believe this," Aunt Henrietta picked up a card from the table—a Bruce & Vincent card with "Petey Sandish" in small letters in one corner. She tossed the card into Mickey's lap.

Mickey stared at it in sick fascination. It seemed to prove, beyond a doubt, that Peter had sent the girl.

"You would do well to forget that young man," said her aunt. "It's quite obvious that he and this friend of his have concocted some scheme for getting money out of you."

Not impossible! Mickey couldn't believe such a thing of Peter. And yet, she couldn't help being filled with doubts. She heard her aunt saying something more, but the words were a mere jumble in her ears.

She rose. "My head aches dreadfully. I think I'll go upstairs. If you will excuse me."

Recipe Of The Week

There is a wide variety of fish products on the market which can be prepared in economical and appetizing dishes. Points out Miss Florence Inlay, specialist in foods at the UK College of Agriculture and Home Economics. For a different dish, try fish omelet, chowder or fish loaf.

Fish Loaf
2 cups flaked fish
4 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons butter or oleo-margarine
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon chopped parsley
1 teaspoon minced onion
3-4 teaspoon salt

Add the lemon juice to the flaked cooked or canned fish. Prepare a sauce of the fat, flour and milk. Stir in the beaten eggs, fish, onion, parsley and salt. Pour into a well greased baking dish and set fish in pan of hot water. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, for about 30 minutes, or until inserted knife comes out clean.

Menu: Fish loaf, creamed potatoes, scalloped tomatoes, cabbage-pine-apple salad, cornbread, butter and apple crisp

Iron Curtain Refugees Besiege Foreign Legion

PARIS (UP)—Discontented Germans and Central Europeans from behind the iron curtain are flocking to join the famous French Foreign Legion, which is turning down several hundred applicants a week.

An officer of the Legion, recently transferred to Paris, told the United Press that some 800 Germans apply weekly in the French occupation zone. The Legion limits the number of Germans who can join and takes only specialists. But Germans make up two-thirds of the 30 per cent which have been recruited from Central Europe since the war, he said.

The Germans who try to enlist are mostly displaced Sudeten refugees or those who have lost faith in the future of their country, the officer said. Hungarians, Rumanians, Czechs and other eastern Europeans "who don't like the conditions of life in their countries" are also eager to join, he said. However, they first must escape from their homelands, where the Legion does not have recruiting centers.

Before the war the Legion recruited many anti-fascist Germans, White Russians and Spanish Republicans. Today it receives no Russian applicants. The Legion was reduced at the end of the war through losses in action to about 5,000 men. Now it receives about 1,000 candidates a week at its recruiting headquarters in Marseilles.

Two Litters—600 Charles Lane Jones, president of the Center 4-H Club in Metcalfe county, was selected district swine champion, having made about $800 profit from two litters of registered Durocs. He was also county champion in the town derby, producing 90 bushels of corn on one acre.

PLAYTIME—As winter invades the Middle West, most of the animals at the St. Louis Zoo are forced to give up their favorite sport—looking at people. Now in their indoor cages, Palmer, the chimp, and Maxine, the lion cub, get more chance to play together, and here they seem to be hatching a plot.

Primo Carnera Accepts Short Bed But Other Stars Feel Differently

CHICAGO (UP)—Primo Carnera, the hulking former boxer turned wrestler, always has acted a little on the zany side but he's outdoing himself now that he has gone Hollywood.

Italy's best-busting gift to the American scene admits coyly that he can't sleep a wink unless his feet (size 18) are hanging over the end of the bed, looking like a couple of hindquarters of beef.

This interesting intelligence comes from Mrs. Rose Gineig, who knows more about the sleeping habits of the stars than anybody else. As head of a Hollywood bedding manufacturing company, she has designed sleep-pads for most of them.

The Legion still asks no questions about the pasts of applicants and allows them to enlist under a false name. SS members, collaborators and war criminals are excluded. SS men can be identified because of a tattooing on their arms and intelligence officials subject others to a radical security check through photographs. Physical examinations are more strict than before the war.

Like every other French organization, the Legion is having financial difficulties. Foreign recruits training in North Africa at the beginning of a five-year contract are paid only six francs (five cents) a day.

Most Legion enlistments are from the "Latin bloc"—French, Italians and Spaniards, who make up over 50 per cent of the organization. Frenchmen who enlist must do so as Swiss or Belgians "who have lost their identity papers," as only Legion officers are permitted to be French.

Americans and British make up about 3 per cent of the membership. Slav countries contribute 5 per cent, and the other percentage is "of indeterminate nationality."

Legion units are currently serving in the war in Indo-China and in Madagascar. Its members are exempted from having to fight in Europe unless they volunteer.

The great and want-to-be-great of flickerland, she said, want vast acres of sleeping space, unlike Carnera. It probably has something to do with the fact that nervous people are nervous sleepers.

Mrs. Gineig got the idea several years ago when she, herself, got tired of falling out of bed every night. So she designed the king size sacks.

Burt Ives, among other actors and actresses, has one of the largest beds built. It's eight feet wide and eight feet long.

One Hollywood couple approached Mrs. Gineig, who calls herself a sleep doctor, with a problem that almost stunned her. The husband said he liked a hard mattress, while his wife said she liked a soft one. That took a bit of doing but the bed people finally came up with a two-mattress job zipped together, one hard and one soft.

Charles Coburn, the character actor, confessed that he was somewhat of a character in the privacy of his own bedroom, too.

He is what is known as a "roller" when it comes to sleeping. Small beds, he complained, didn't have enough roll room to suit him.

So before he ordered one of the king size sacks he hired a small boy to watch him sleep and count the times he rolled during an eight hour sleeping shift—and measure the distance rolled. That gave him an odd sized bed—nine feet wide and eight feet long.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11 (UP)—Professional basketball is having a hard time coming into its own but boys like Carl Braun, a lean and laughing youngster with an accurate eye, promise in time to put the sport over with as big a bang as the college game.

Braun, a six foot, four inch product of Colgate, is the current sensation of the New York Knickerbockers in the Basketball Association of America.

Last season the cash dribblers were raving about a young man named Joe Fulks of Philadelphia. He set a record of 41 points in one game.

So Braun stepped out in his first year of professional court competition and, although absolutely unheralded, shattered the record by swishing 47 points through the hoop.

The funny part is that Braun, although a pro rookie, was completely unaffected by his performance.

"I must have been unconscious," he laughed.

Also peculiar is that the 20-year-old New Yorker whose folks never would let him play football, would rather be an end on somebody's football team than anything, he can think about—and is completely indifferent to the fact that he has been tabbed as a promising pitcher in the famed New York Yankee chain.

Carl, a handsome lad with curly black hair, pitched for Sunbury in the Interstate League half of last season, winning three and losing three. Then he went to Amsterdam in the Can-Am League and had a four-four record.

"I've got a pretty good fast ball and a slider," he said. "Now they're trying to teach me a fork ball."

"Play baseball better than anything," he repeated. "Well, no. I like baseball but I'm more partial to basketball. Guess it comes easier to me."

"But I always really wanted to play football most."

Carl goes south with Newark in the spring and has no illusions.

"They'll decide what to do with me," he laughed. "Probably send me to Podunk."

Full of nervous energy, Braun moves continually and effortlessly. That energy probably accounts for the difficulty rival court teams have in covering him. For the rookie in 12 games has hung up 154 points. His top performance, naturally, was the record breaking effort against Providence as the Knicks won, 114-85.

Carl racked up 18 field goals and 11 fouls without a miss for his 47-point total. He scored 19 points in the final period and during the evening netted 18 shots in 35 attempts for a fine mark of 51 per cent.

He got his biggest kick out of it when he got home.

"I really took a ribbing from the folks," Carl grinned.

"They laid a piece of red carpet out on the steps and my sister made a crown out of cardboard. They gave me the works."

Braun is modestly proud of the sudden success but prefers to talk about the fact that his father once held the world record for bowling duckpins.

"Dad said he set his record just like I did mine," Carl smiled. "Just one of those nights when everything went right."

"As I say, I guess I was just unconscious!"

Legal Safecracking' Makes Living For Father and Son

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—When Blair B. Fowler of Salt Lake City went to university, he studied to become a mechanical engineer.

But when he got out of school, he decided to follow in his father's footsteps and become a safecracker.

The father, Charles A. Fowler, has been breaking into Utah safes by request for more than 30 years. He estimates that over those years he has cracked more than 6,000 strongboxes.

Most of the safecracking jobs come to the father-son team from merchants who have lost or forgotten the combination.

But illegal burglars bring a lot of business to the legal breakers.

Some burglars who try to break into a safe but can't do it, succeed only in wrecking the box so badly that the regular locks won't work. Then a call goes out for the Fowlers.

Few safes are made that won't respond to the Fowlers' drills and cutting torches. The few that won't work are the few jobs made of manganese steel, which Blair Fowler says are "fireproof, drill-proof and burglar-proof."

The incident best remembered by the Fowlers is one which occurred when they were returning to Salt Lake City from a safe-opening job in the southern part of Utah.

Their tools were piled on the back seat of their car—drills, sledge hammers and blow torches.

They stopped and picked up a hitchhiker. The transient climbed into the rear seat and then paused when he saw the tools. He asked, "What do you guys do?" Blair Fowler nonchalantly told him, "We're safecrackers."

Civil Service Jobs

The U. S. Civil Service Commission announced today that applications for the positions of Electronic Engineer and Physicist are being accepted. The positions are accepted by the Executive Secretary of the Board of U. S. Civil Service Examiners at each of the U. S. Navy Underwater Sound Laboratory, Fort Trumbull, New London, Connecticut; Naval Research Laboratory Field Station, 470 Atlantic Avenue, Boston 10, Massachusetts; and 230 Albany St., Cambridge, Massachusetts.

Application for Engineer positions at $3,397 and $4,149 a year are also being accepted by the Executive Secretary, Central Board of U. S. Civil Service Examiners, Bureau of Reclamation, Denver Federal Center, Denver, Colorado. These positions are in stocke directly off grass without sacrificing profits, he added, and many dairymen are maintaining milk production on less grain.

A leaflet issued by the College of Agriculture and Home Economics in October sets out the possibilities of raising all kinds of livestock and poultry on less grain, by using the fullest Kentucky's grasses and its alfalfa, red clover, lespedeza and other hay.

Members of the committee are J. E. Stanford, secretary of the Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation; President E. L. Save Meat By Buying, Cooking Well

A simple two-fold program, for saving meat that is within the reach of everyone is proposed by Reba Stagg, home economist. A consistent following of this program, day after day, will help the family budget, she says.

First of all, according to Miss Stagg, it is important to become acquainted with cuts of meat that are not quite so much in demand, at the meat market. Actually, there are from 175 to 250 retail cuts of meat, but only about 20 of these are familiar to most women. This leaves an army of around 130 to 200 cuts of meat that are little in demand.

Because these cuts are in little demand, they are a better budget value to the average homemaker. Examples of these cuts are: beef plate, beef brisket, lamb and veal cross-cut shanks, pork shoulder steaks, lamb shoulder chops, ham shank, beef short ribs, and countless others. Each of these cuts is equal in nutrition and flavor to other cuts of the same kind, and can be made just as tender by slow moist-heat cooking.

The second idea Miss Stagg suggests is the interest of conservation has to do with temperature. It is important, she points out, to cook meat slowly, both from the standpoint of serving meat at its best, and for saving. Meat that is cooked at low temperatures (300 degrees F. for roasting; low heat for broiling, panbroiling and pan-frying, and simmering temperatures for braising and cooking with liquid) actually provides more meat to serve, for it shrinks less. In addition it is juicier and more flavorful.

A psychologist says that the average family should have 51 persons in it. Must we assume that 1 is the old man?

Timely Advice

ON HOW TO BUY A GOOD RADIO SET

Everyone wants a new radio that won't become an "orphan," and yet the odds are 5 to 1 that the average buyer may choose just such a set. Look at the figures if you don't believe it: In the period between 1922 and 1939, there were 886 different brands of radio receiving sets offered to the public, according to authoritative reports. Yet—742 were discontinued by 1940!

Stewart-Warner—a name we are proud of . . . a name that is the trademark of a $50,000,000 institution known around the world . . . has been a leading manufacturer of radio sets for 22 years. A Stewart-Warner set will never be an orphan.
